

All That I Wanna Do

A massive and exceptionally large installation from 2005, featuring hundreds of sculptures and large mirrors to craft an infinite horizontal space. This visually striking display offered a kaleidoscopic perspective of objects, creating a mysterious and captivating experience. Artists Vaishali and Sanjeev created a poignant portrait of contemporary man alienated from himself, entangled in an unquenchable web of surplus desires.

Essays by Abhay Sardesai and Kumar Ketkar included.

Year: 2005